

The Dr. Paul Janssen Award Symposium

Sponsored by Johnson & Johnson and the New York Academy of Sciences.

September 10, 2008

The New York Academy of Sciences

7 World Trade Center, 250 Greenwich St. at Barclay St., 40th fl

From bench to bedside: Novel anti-cytokine therapies.

8:30 a.m.	Registration
9:00 a.m.	Chairman's welcome and introductory remarks Craig C. Mello University of Massachusetts Medical School
9:15 a.m.	What have we learned about anti-cytokine therapies from laboratory studies? Marc Feldmann Kennedy Institute of Rheumatology, Imperial College London
9:40 a.m.	What have we learned about anti-cytokine therapies from clinical studies? Ravinder N. Maini Kennedy Institute of Rheumatology, Imperial College London
10:15 a.m.	A molecular trio in relapse and remission of multiple sclerosis Lawrence Steinman Stanford University School of Medicine
10:45 a.m.	Coffee Break
11:15 a.m.	B-Cells and autoimmune disease Peter E. Lipsky Bethesda, Maryland
12:00 a.m.	Cytokine-directed strategies as novel therapies for asthma Peter J. Barnes National Heart & Lung Institute, Imperial College London
12:45 p.m.	Lunch
2:00 p.m.	Panel Discussion: Challenges and opportunities in development of new biological therapies. Chair: Susan B. Dillon Centocor Research & Development, Radnor PA. Panel Members: Marc Feldmann, Ravinder N Maini, Lawrence Steinman, Peter E. Lipsky, Peter J. Barnes.
3:30 p.m.	Close

For program updates go to www.pauljanssenaward.com.

© 2008 Johnson & Johnson Pharmaceutical Services L.L.C.